

Clinipics

Picture 1: Low hair neck line in this girl is an indication of malformed and fused cervical vertebrae. In these patients special precaution and technique may be required for endotracheal intubation.

Pictures 2 & 3: Severe dorsal kyphosis is a nightmare for the anesthesiologist as it is attended with extremely difficult intubation during induction of anesthesia. Fibroptic intubation should be considered.

Prof. Naeem Khan
Professor of Pediatric Surgery
KRL general Hospital Islamabad (Pakistan)

